Assignments

ORIENTATION QUIZ

After reading the syllabus thoroughly, investigating your textbooks, and getting to know the course site in Canvas, this quiz will help to make sure you understand how the course will progress. You will have two hours to complete the 20 question quiz and are free to use any resources you have available ("open book"). The Orientation Quiz is worth 10 points towards your course grade.

RESEARCH SKILLS REVIEW TEST

After taking the Research Skills Review tutorial to review the academic research skills you learned in ENG 101/102, take the followup Test to earn some points and prove that you know what you're doing. You will need these skills to complete the Study Guide and Final Paper assignments. If you find through the test that your skills aren't quite ready, I can set you up with this course's assigned research librarian. 30 minutes. The Research Skills Review Test is worth 10 points towards your course grade.

5 MINUTE QUIZZES

These quick quizzes are to help you and me know how thoroughly you have understood the assigned readings and lectures. Each "open note" quiz (18 on the films, 14 on the readings) has five questions, takes 5 minutes, and is worth 5 points. Use these to help yourself to study--incrementally--for the exams. All quizzes are conducted in Canvas; students are NOT required to travel to campus or to use the testing centre. You will not be allowed to backtrack to questions left unanswered. Plan and use your time wisely! Each of 32 quizzes is worth 5 points towards your course grade.

ACTIVITIES

Seven times during the course, we will complete a short activity. Some of these are creative projects, some are techy, some are taxonomic, some address multiple literatures. Each is designed to experiment with some of the ways real world scholars work with literature. The description and instructions for each are posted on their assignment pages. Look ahead for these on the schedule--they may require you to find or set up something in advance and they should be fun. Each of seven activities is worth 10 points towards your course grade.

STUDY GUIDES

Please prepare a short study guide for each literary reading. These will serve as a study guide for you in preparing for tests and the final exam. When deciding what information to include in your book report, please consider which information tells us something about where the literature comes from and why we continue to care about it. Data such as the names of an author's three daughters will almost never help us understand a reading. At a minimum, your study guide should include:

- about 150 words summarizing the authorship of a reading (both the author him/her-self AND the community/context from which the piece derives. Many ancient texts have no individual author but are known to have come from a particular community at a particular time. Write about that.),
- about 100 words summarizing the literary reading itself,

- about 200 words discussing the significance of the reading (which later authors refer to it? how did it shape our modern world?), a list of the major and minor characters with a short explanation each, definitions of any new vocabulary you uncovered,
- and five bullet points for additional information you want to remember.

You should use the introductory material in your textbook and reference sources such as Wikipedia or the many encyclopedias accessed through Credo Reference to answer many of the sections of the study guide. Any information that is not wholly yours must be cited using MLA style. There is a sample available in "Orientation" under "Course Content." Each of 14 study guides is worth 10 points towards your course grade.

EXAMS

The Midterm contains 100 questions to be answered in 150 minutes. Questions will cover every reading, film, and activity through 6 March. The Final Exam includes 200 questions in 3 hours and will cover the entire course content. You will not be allowed to backtrack to questions left unanswered. The exams include multiple choice, multiple answer, and true/false questions covering the readings, videos/lectures, and other course material. You may use your study guides, notes, and textbook to answer the questions. The midterm and final exams are each worth 100 points towards your course grade.

PAPER

Using one of the assigned topics, demonstrate your understanding of a single theme as represented by multiple literary readings and your scholarly research skills to construct a 1500 word evidence-based, formal, academic essay. You should include citations from our textbook, the course films, and your own library research. As this is a 200-level literature course, reference sources and most web pages are unacceptable. You will be required to submit a complete outline of your paper before the paper is due so I can consult with you about arrangement, argument, and evidence. Along with your final paper, you should submit a copy of the report you received when you sent your draft in to SmartThinking for writing assistance. The outline is worth 20 points towards your course grade. The final paper is worth 100 points towards your course grade.

EXTRA CREDIT

There are extra credit opportunities available throughout the course. Many of these assignments ask you to check out an interpretation of the classic literature we've read in contemporary film, television, or music and respond to a writing prompt. Other assignments ask you to write, shoot, and edit a short film related to the literature. You may do these assignments to boost your grade, to expand your learning, or to make up for a regular assignment you may have missed. All extra credit assignments are optional. If you have an idea for a different extra credit assignment, you may propose it to me and I'll help you figure out a way to make it happen. Extra credit assignments are each worth 2, 5, or 20 points.
